PROMISCUITY AND THE AMERICAN MALE
Pimping Ain't Easy

Brooklyn, March 11, 2011 – Statistics show that Infidelity is running rampant in the United States. According to Peggy Vaughan, author of “The Monogamy Myth”, about 60 percent of men and 40 percent of women will have an affair at some point in some marriage.

Are men striving to make a fantasy come true? Apparently, men believe that they would love to be in a polygamous relationship or a commune where one male dominates over a harem filled with beautiful submissive woman – a nice fantasy, but is it realistic.

According to Mr. Fly, author of Love Fantasy and Money, Chronicles of a Master Pimp, “In a supposedly voluntary close-knit polygamous commune, more often than not, simplicity does not exist. Usually, jealousy, animosity and the like dominate the household.” Only half joking, Mr. Fly agrees that “...pimping ain't easy.”

Mr. Fly explains, “Real pimps know what's up.” His novel describes the life of a real pimp called Money, and the constant changes that he goes through. “It speaks to all the wanna-be players out there who need to wake up and realize that they are just cheaters who should curb their desire to waltz into the life of every female that smiles in their direction.” In the novel, the author depicts exploits, which draw a picture and a very clear message to the would-be players, “Get real. Ice the dream. You guys are not pimps. You are just home wreckers.”

Love Fantasy and Money – Chronicles of a Master Pimp is available at Amazon.com.
